

+ Animal Tracking and Bird Language

Matt Nelson

+ Come spend a day learning animal tracking and bird language skills with Cybertracker Track and Sign Specialist Matt Nelson, and Jim Sullivan, a 4th generation Sonoma county resident and tracking and nature connection mentor. We'll learn to identify the tracks and sign of the species we encounter as well as focus on gaits and learn about animal locomotion. Being able to recognize track patterns can tell us how an animal was moving and perhaps why. Develop the skills and confidence to recognize the local animals living among us and see some of the life and death dramas that are happening all the time, deepening our connection to place.

Explore the Mysteries of Nature

Sunday, March 22, 2015

We will meet at 8 am on the entrance road to the Bodega Dunes campground, a mile north of Bodega Bay and spend the morning tracking on one of the best tracking locations in the region. After a lunch break and some free time, we'll meet again at 3 pm and track into the sunset.

This is a rare opportunity to get some intense dirt time with two experienced local trackers in one of the best and most beautiful tracking sites in the region. Bring water, snacks/lunch, binoculars if you have them. Be ready for both cold and warm weather.

Cost is $100.00 per person. Limit of 12 participants.
